Limassol Theatre Art School – More than a theatre

Christmas / Photojournalism / Portrait Posted by Cristian Dascalu

Hi everyone,

Time for a new story folks, and actually it is not only a new story – it is an official invitation to Art: to Limassol Theatre Arts School (LTAS), on 23rd and 24th of February 2013 at 15:00 and 18:30.

The story starts back in time, when I first met Panayiotis – about 3 years ago, while we were searching for a house / studio for Cristian Dascalu Photography. At that time, I did not have any idea that Panayiotis was one of the people behind Limassol Theatre Arts School.

Let me tell you a bit more about Limassol Theatre Arts School (LTAS). LTAS is a stage school for kids aged 3 – 18 years located in the heart of Limassol. Their goal is to give young people the best quality training in Musical Theatre, Dance, Singing and Drama as well as providing a wide variety of performance opportunities, and not only. For adults there are Salsa, Singing (Vocals) & Tap Classes.

LTAS combines theatre training with the latest performance techniques. Students learn their skills through both practice in class and performance opportunities outside, with a strong emphasis on discipline and learning how to meet any occasion encountered with confidence.

Guys, I can only confirm that you will be amazed about what you are going to see at LTAS. I was invited by Panayiotis to assist at one of their Christmas shows, in mid December 2012, when I took my camera with me. I was told that the show would be fantastic, but I understood what fantastic means when I was on the first row, taking photos with everyone. I was amazed about their preparations, dedication, synchronization and astonished with their voices! Definitely something that is worth seeing over and over again!

Below, I am presenting you some of the photos taken during the Christmas performance (Sliver Bells). I was simply amazed: everything was beyond expectations ... Everything was fantastic, and you need to be there to see it and feel it!

To me, it was an amazing experience as a Professional Cyprus Photographer and I emphasize that you should be there for their next performance.

Below I am inviting you to see some of the photos I took on the Christmas show. Enjoy!
